Beginning with their inception over 34 years ago, CCA began streamlining the collision repair process, instilling computer management and estimating systems along with an extensive quality check list to insure vehicle quality. CCA's technicians are I-CAR trained on the latest technologies to keep up with the evolving auto industry.

The equipment CCA uses is cutting edge, from 3D computerized measuring to a top quality paint facility with baking oven. Thinking forward, CCA has begun implementing the same equipment companies like GM and Honda use to design, quality check, and test their new production vehicles.

Collision Centers of America is comprised of highly trained office and technical staff to insure the quality outcome the customer expects. CCA believes educating their customers of the repair process creates a higher level of customer confidence and satisfaction.
